With the testimony of two more publishers, the prosecution completed its investigation of publication of great quantities of books and pamphlets by the I. W. W. shortly before America entered the war and during the three

The evidence is in the form of a bags, saps, pieces of iron pipe but out of sight of the guards. Among the home-made weapons discovered was a wooden revolver, an ously injured exact duplicate in size and appear ance of the old army Colt's revolver This weapon had been carefully and cleverly whittled from a board some one of the prisoners, painted black and fitted so that at night it would be easily mistaken for the genuine article. The revolver is a marvel of workmanship, being complete in every detail, even to the oldfashioned trigger guard, which had been care fully whittled out of the wood. This dummy weapon was found concealed in one of the barracks and it is believ ed by the officers that the maker had intended to use it at night either in the planned general escape or in an attempt on his own part by getting the drop on a guard and bluffing his way to liberty Clubs Are Unearthed.

SALT LAKE, May 8 .- That John L. Halman, who was promoting the proposed wool scouring plant here some months ago, is a thoroughly patriotic American who has not in any way been connected with any wool plan of German origin or taint, is the declaration of H. A. Smith, attorney for Mr. Halman in his scouring plant promotions. Mr. Smith, who has just returned from California, where he was with Mr. Halman in a proposal to purchase and operate a scouring plant that had already been established, declares the intimation that Mr. Halman was in any way connected with plans of German design is unfair and is not founded upon fact.

I have known Mr. Halman very intimately and there is not a more patriotic man to be found. He is doing everything he can to help the government win the war, and it cannot be said he has knowingly been connected with other than patriotic efforts.
